Department of Molecular and Human Genetics was established in 2004 is funded by Department of Biotechnology, India and runs a two year M.Sc. course in Molecular and Human Genetics along with research in Immunogenetics, cancer genetics, developmental genetics and reproductive genetics.

About Immunology:

The human body shields against millions of infectious agents each day with its complex intricate network of defence mechanisms at all sites of entry. The study of the response of the human body to these agents and medical interventions to treat them is termed as immunology. This field of study continues to extend horizons in our understanding of how to treat significant health issues, with ongoing research efforts in immunotherapy, autoimmune diseases, and vaccines for emerging pathogens. Advancing our understanding of basic immunology is essential for clinical and commercial applications and has facilitated the discovery of new diagnostics and treatments to manage a wide array of diseases.

The field of Immunology is growing rapidly and its development is making tremendous impacts in medical sciences and pharmaceuticals.

About the National Seminar:

Department of Molecular & Human Genetics is organizing this seminar under the aegis of Indian Immunology Society, New Delhi and invites keynote lectures from top and leading immunologists from the country focusing to inspire, teach and guide young minds towards the field of Immunology. The seminar aims to provide a platform for discussion of recent advances in our understanding of key immunological mechanisms that includes areas of basic immunology, immune mechanisms in diseases and stem cell immunology. This will provide an excellent opportunity for students and faculty alike to keep abreast of recent developments, share ideas, raise awareness of practices that improves immune system in health and subsequently inspire them to contribute towards this fascinating field of immunology.

Major thrust areas of the Seminar

- Antigen-antibody Interactions
